This is the story of a personal journey. It involves a loving couple, a half-baked plan, and a leaking boat. The author spent his formative years adolecing about in the freshwater wonderland that is his home state of Michigan. His second quarter century was spent plying his profession on that concrete island slab charmingly referred to by its denizens as the capital of the world, New York City. In 1994 Paul met Deb, who when not willfully commuting to the aforementioned rock outcropping, could be found tooling around in her "stinkpotter" on the Long Island Sound. What's a small-town, freshwater boy to do with a girl harboring big-city dreams? Add salt, sails, and stir vigorously.
