Help students learn essential math concepts; give parents a chance to serve as models of motivation, persistence and competence; and promote math success in a supportive setting. With its step-by-step directions and suggestions for both teachers and parents, this book takes the worry out of planning and conducting a Family Math Night at your school. Invite parents to accompany their children to school for an evening event. Arrange a series of tables (“stations”) in a large room or in several classrooms. As shown in this book, prepare materials – easy-to-find and inexpensive -- and set up an activity at each station. Parents and students visit some or all stations and engage in the activities together. Teachers encourage participation, offer assistance, and promote “math talk”. This book contains 40 engaging and inspiring activities, organized by grade level, along with--For the teacher –list of materials, helpful hints, and connections to math standards; and- For the parent and student –description of activity and directions, questions parents can ask and challenges. The activities in this book align with the NCTM content and process standards for pre-kindergarten through grade 5.

John Fouts:

As a pupil exactly feel bored in order to reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library as well as to make summary for some book, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's heart or real their hobby. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading critically. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful pics on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important for you. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Family Math Night: Math Standards in Action can make you sense more interested to read.
